

Hard Up Local Authority Forced Elderly Aunties Out Of Their Home To Keep Nursing Home Opened and keep jobs

Two aunties who lived together for 40 years were both taken from their home and forced to spend their days apart in nursing homes in South Shields. One of the Nursing Homes currently under Criminal investigation by Police are still carrying out on-going investigations at St Michael's Care Home South Shields involving unexplained deaths. The other Nursing Home which is currently being threatened with closure with 90 jobs at risk brought one of the aunties to the nursing home when the Local Authority forced her out of her own home in Reading Road South Shields in July 2009. The ninety year old lady who was fit physically and of sound well-being died after only six months under the care of Connolly House South Shields Local Authority. She did not want to live in any nursing home because of her fear of contracting an infection which nursing homes actively host and prey on the elderly.

The family of the dead woman who died unexpectedly after an infection got in to her chest for a period of seven days before she died the authorities could only stand and watch whilst she was dying and family members were told they were not allowed to see her and witness what was actually happening to her during this time of events taking place. Her family are now seeking a High Court Enquiry as to the Local Authority Powers which took their elderly aunty from her home and forced her in to Local Authority Care. A member of her family said that their aunty was a well and physical lady who did not take any medication and did not frequent doctor surgeries and was expected to live until she was 100 years of age - the interference of the local authority and forcefully administering her drugs which she would never have taken had she been left to live in her own home this has had a post traumatic stress disorder which had fatal consequential affects which lead to her unexpected death.

DONT CONFUSE DEMENTIA WITH NATURAL AGING

Dont allow local authorities to force your loved ones in to an elderly care homes just because they want to keep jobs and generate revenue. My aunt who is now been in a care home for over a year is left to lie in her bed nobody to interact with and only staff who come in wash and feed her and also to take £500 off her each week for this obscene existence. Before going in to a care home she could feed herself she had ongoing interaction with family members and was able to sit up and move about in her bed now because of the local authority who forced her in to care she cannot even move from side to side without help. South Shields Local Authority are hard up local authorities and place like this where deaths are being investigated should be closed down.

The Most Common Forms Of Mental Decline Associated With Aging Are:

Slower thinking and problem solving - The speed of learning slows down short-term memory takes longer to function; reaction time increases. Decreased Attention And Concentration - More Distractedness. All of these Interrupitons make Learning More Difficult. Slower recall - A Greater Need For Hints To Jog The Memory.

Typical Aging:

- ÿ Complains about memory loss but able to provide detailed examples of forgetfulness
- ÿ Occasionally searches for words May have to pause to remember directions, but doesn't get lost in familiar places
- ÿ Remembers recent important events; conversations are not impaired
- ÿ Interpersonal social skills are at the same level as they've always be symptoms of Dementia:

- ÿ Complain of memory loss only if asked; unable to recall specific instances
- ÿ Frequent word-finding pauses, substitutions
- ÿ Gets lost in familiar places and takes excessive time to return home
- ÿ Notable decline in memory for recent events and ability to converse
- ÿ Loss of interest in social activities; may behave in socially inappropriate ways

There is a difference between Dementia and getting old both are two completely separate issues and should not be confused with symptoms of Dementia and Alzheimer's Disease. Do not accelerate symptoms by being insensitive, impatient or glorifying the disease in order to involve outside help i.e social services and other authorities who only want to interfere to keep jobs and maintain hard-up local authority budgets and no understanding of whether it is Old Age, Dementia or Alzheimer's Disease.
